

JOSH, ALLIE & JOHN BOMAN

PURDUE CHI ALPHA

Seyi

Jenn

Ali K

Allie B

Raising up Disciple-makers

God's mandate for Chi Alpha is essentially to make disciples in the university community. We have been privileged to invest in discipleship relationships with many young men and women during our time at Purdue. We use a curriculum that covers the basics of the faith and helps to equip students with Kingdom-living skills, like sharing their faith, submitting to Jesus' lordship and meditating on Scriptures. The curriculum takes about four semesters to cover, so we spend a lot of time with these people! It is so rewarding to watch them mature.

Allie has just finished the curriculum with her final group at Purdue, which is both sad and fulfilling. We have been together for two years and have grown to be close friends. Ali got married just before joining our group, and Jenn was married during the two years we were meeting. We've had many talks about doing married life God's way! Seyi is a grad student from Nigeria, who is happily single, but drank in all the insight on married life while she had the chance.

Seyi is now discipling her long-time best friend who recently gave her life to Christ at Chi Alpha, plus another friend who has been a Christian for a long time, but only recently got "serious" about Jesus. And you may remember Ali from our previous newsletter. She and her husband, Jordan, are taking over leadership of our Married Couples Life Group! Jenn is also reaching out to a new Christian at church.

This is the vision of disciple-making: to build quality, edifying relationships centered on the Word, and then release the disciples to make a similar investment in others' lives. This is Jesus' main strategy for growing the Kingdom (Matthew 28:19-20), and it's just amazing to see how effective it can be!

Thanks for investing in us, so we can invest in the Kingdom at Purdue – and beyond!

In Christ,
Josh, Allie and Johnny Boman
www.boman.webstarts.com

